

Cat May Be To Blame For 15K Losing Power

Driver Swerves To Miss Cat, Hits Pole

POSTED: Sunday, June 22, 2008

UPDATED: 10:40 am EDT June 23, 2008

SACRAMENTO, Calif. -- Police said a stray cat may be to blame for a car crash that caused a power outage in Sacramento, reported KCRA-TV.

The crash happened at the intersection of Eastern and Robertson avenues when a driver swerved to miss hitting a cat in the road, officials said.

The driver ended up crashing into a power pole head-on, causing 15,000 people to lose power, officials said.

"I'm surprised she's alive," said witness Jay Maddison. "If it wasn't for her air bags, she'd be dead."

Distributed by Internet Broadcasting. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.